

Ageing in Australia

Author/s: Rowland, D T | Year: 1991 | Publication type: Book | Peer reviewed: | Topic area/s: General CALD

Reference:

Key Words:

population projections, demography

Research aim:

The book presents up-to-date research findings, provides comparisons with overseas studies and trends, introduces relevant theoretical concepts and explains changes and their consequences. It discusses key characteristics of the aged, and places them in the context of cross-national comparisons, policy issues, and projected developments into the twenty-first century. The theme is the social integration of the aged, which is central to understanding quality of life in old age and to the appropriate design of social policies concerning the aged.
