

Ageing migrant communities and access to residential aged care services

Author/s: Petrov, Ljubica | Year: 2008 | Publication type: Journal article | Peer reviewed: | Topic area/s: Culturally Appropriate Care

Reference:

Key Words:

ethno-specific care, carers of CALD aged

Research aim:

The article argues that responsibility for caring for CALD elders should not be the responsibility of only a few services. It shows that previous migration waves are now resulting in differing proportions of elderly people in various migrant communities. It calls for the development of a policy framework that clarifies the roles of aged care and support agencies, guides them in providing culturally appropriate services and monitors the delivery of these services.

Results/Conclusion:

Implications:

Cultural Group(s):

Location of study:

Age group:

Number included in study:

N/A

Type of participants:

Research approach:

Type of data:

Secondary data sources used:

Specific scales or analytical techniques used:

Implications/ Recommendations:

Notes:

Discussion piece. Mosaic article - arguing 'culturally appropriate care' should not just be the responsibility of ethno-specific services but mainstream services should also have culturally appropriate services as a core of their operations.